Polk County, Florida Implements NewVision Juvenile Court Case Management System

New Canaan, Connecticut – (September 1, 2008) -- NewVision Systems Corporation is pleased to announce the installation of a new Court Case Management System in Polk County (Bartow), Florida. Polk County is now fully operational on the NewVision system for all juvenile cases filed in the County. The August 4 implementation of the Juvenile Delinquency cases was preceded by the automation of the Juvenile Dependency cases on the NewVision System. This project was based on an operational study that analyzed Polk's juvenile court process and identified opportunities to streamline the operation. An in-depth review of Polk's juvenile dependency and juvenile delinquency processes formed the basis of the design for their new juvenile court system. Richard Weiss, Polk County Clerk of the Circuit Court noted the importance of applying imaging and workflow technology to the Courts. "The implementation of the NewVision system has allowed us to dramatically improve the efficiency of our staff. The Juvenile divisions will now reap the benefits of automated imaging, docketing and case file retrieval. The NewVision staff worked very closely with us to assure a smooth transition and to assure that the confidentiality inherent in juvenile cases has been protected. We are looking forward to similar success as we convert the remaining Criminal Courts."

The Juvenile Case Management System is the latest step in a comprehensive plan to automate all of the Polk County Courts in the NewVision System. The County has previously implemented the NewVision Civil Case Management System in support of the Circuit, County and Domestic Relations divisions. The Criminal Court Case Management suite will leverage imaging and workflow functionality to achieve significant efficiency gains. Key characteristics include the imaging of documents, automatic creation of work queues for processing, electronic document creation, auto-docketing and event-driven process scheduling.
